

Triangle Tailors Chalk Manufacturing Business.

Production of Cloth Marking Chalk.

Introduction

A chalk-like material used for marking alterations on fabric in tailoring and dressmaking. The marks are brushed or washed off the material when no longer needed. A thin flat piece of hard chalk or soapstone used by tailors and seamstresses for making temporary marks on cloth.

Used for making markings on textiles, either by clothing manufacturers, seamstresses, tailors or sewing at home. Tailor Chalk mainly consists of two types of substances: wax-based and clay-based. When Tailor Chalk is properly formulated, it will mark fabric for cutting and alterations in tailoring and dressmaking work.

Also known as tailor's chalk, is a clay-based chalk that's easy to rub away and works well on woven fabrics, window material and vinyl. It comes in a box of 12 that contains white, red, yellow and blue chalk for any color of fabric. Each piece of chalk is shaped like a triangle for consistent sharp, marking edges. This chalk is soft and does break rather easily, but even small pieces can be used to great effect.

Textile Manufacturing

Tailor's chalk was conventionally made with hard chalk to make temporary markings, and has been a favorite of tailors and seamstresses for over a century. This specialty fabric marking chalk also indicates the spots on a garment where fabric might need to be taken in or let out, shortened or lengthened, or a pleat needs to be made.

This makes it easy to see the exact intended location, even after the material has been flipped, folded, or hung multiple times. Whether it be for buttons, seams, hems, or lapels, these are truly the best tools for making temporary guide marks on a garment or accessory that is being altered.

Tailor's chalk usually comes in a rectangular or triangular shape that can resemble a small piece of soap, with a practical size and texture. It can also be found in traditional (long tube) crayon shapes, as well as several bright colors to ensure clear visibility on a number of textures.

Market Outlook

Chalk making or chalk production is a profitable small scale business. In addition, one can start this business on a home-based basis. In developing countries still, chalk is an essential item for writing in blackboards in schools. Apart from schools, educations and training institutes, chinks are used by tailors, furniture makers, construction workers and by many industries. Chinks are actually round shaped sticks. And it comes either in white or colors.

Currently often used in the production of apparel disappearance ordinary chalk and chalk, ordinary chalk marks on their own cannot faded, garment processing to inconvenience; disappearance chalk, been able to go away over time, but not easily fade easily and it contains salicylic acid and other toxic substances, long-term use of the user's health.

By a manufacturing process for the tailor chalk, the tailoring chalk is convenient to manufacture and easy to process.
